Domestic Terminal Access Project – ‘Skywalk’

The first stage of the Domestic Terminal Access Project, known as Skywalk, will be open to the public from February 2012.

Skywalk, an undercover pedestrian walkway, will pass over the terminal road system and connect directly with the new and existing multi-level car parks. This will create a safer environment for all pedestrians and reduce congestion on the road system.

Skywalk will provide lifts, travelators and escalators to take visitors to the ground immediately outside the Domestic Terminal. It will also allow easy pedestrian access to Airtrain.

New public pick-up and drop-off road

The new public pick-up and drop-off road is forecast to open in March 2012, weather permitting. Public pick-up will be permitted on this road until alternative arrangements for public pick-up have been implemented towards the end of the first quarter of 2012. This will be the start of a number of changes that will occur on the roads in front of the terminals throughout 2012.

Airtrain access changes at the Domestic Terminal

From February 2012 access to the Airtrain platform will be via Brisbane Airport's newly completed undercover elevated walkway – 'Skywalk'. Signage will be in place to direct passengers along Skywalk to access the Airtrain platform at the Domestic Terminal.

Vehicle height restrictions at Domestic Terminal

Temporary height restrictions remain in place on the Domestic Terminal roads until the roof structure has been installed and scaffolding is erected to protect the edge of the Skywalk, the new undercover elevated walkway, structure. Height restrictions should be relaxed by the end of this month.

When Skywalk is completed, height restrictions will vary from between 4.2 metres and 4.5 metres, depending on road usage. Further information on height restriction details will be provided closer to the opening date.
